The Task

Your job for the next five class days is to create two beautifully-designed and fact-filled travel brochures for your parental units to enjoy. Their long-awaited and much-deserved celebration of your entrance into adulthood will consist of a 7-day adventure-packed tour through some of the most interesting places in the world.

With the help of your two brochures, your parental units will have a full understanding of what they should expect at each of the two places they visit, including a brief summary of the area's history, a description of the climate, geography, political system, leaders, cultural interests, and primary places of interest.

Remember, you love these people and want only the best for them, so if you send them into harm's way, at least prepare them for the dangers that await.

Destinations

Deciding where to go is always a challenge. For this project, your destinations are limited only by your creativity and desire to get a fantastic grade for the fourth and final marking period in AP European History. Destinations should be interesting, unique, and filled with historical, political, economic, military, social, and cultural intrigue.

Since you live here in the United States, please send your parents somewhere other than the United States. Time travel is also prohibited.

Budget

In addition to creating the travel brochures for the two stops on this adventure, you will also be required to create the travel itinerary, including flights, hotels, cars, etc.

As a gift to your parental units for all they have done for you over the past 11 years, you will have a budget of $5,000 to use for this trip for two. If only one unit will be traveling, your budget will be $2,500. With this amount, you will need to book flights, hotels, tours, at least one meal per day, and any other activities that you wish to impart upon your guests.

A printed itinerary with details of this information for the 7 days must be included with the two brochures.
